BUILDING CONFIDENCE IN COVID-19 VACCINES THROUGH ART

“Trusted Messengers” exhibit showcases diverse and innovative works of art created to promote confidence in COVID-19 vaccines is now showcasing original pieces, including Trust Transfer Project.

Through a unique partnership between public health and the arts, Trust Transfer Project was one of 30 arts and culture organizations that received support from the CDC Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts to develop works of art to educate the public and inspire confidence in COVID-19 vaccines. The participating organizations used their chosen art forms to translate public health information about the safety and importance of immunizations into an accessible, memorable and diverse body of work.
